

ANDY GUMP WINS BY 37 PLURALITY

Give Peepul What They Want,
Announced Policy of 100
Per Cent Candidate

HOT AIR TO BE CANNED

The smack of hearty handclaps resounded today at the headquarters of Andy Gump.

It is always so with victory, for the returns show that the 100 per cent independent candidate was elected by a plurality of thirty-seven votes.

Though the election was won by a narrow margin, and double-crossed the ballot by crossing out the name of Gump, it was evident that their energy was out under the strain.

Telegrams, letters, yes, and sweet-scented notes from women admirers engulfed the long, lean candidate today. It was evident, too, that many of his adherents knew of the quadrangular conspiracy he was up against, for one supporter wired:

"A clever game was cooked and everybody was fooled. They believed the magic name of Andy Gump whose chance they tried to spoil. The enemy received the biggest bump."

A usual illustration of the forceful fear of the Congressmen-elect as he read the words, "While the metre is a little wobbly," he said, "it tells the story and the writer knew who's who and what's what."

Hailed as Senator

Some were so jubilant over Andy's victory that they in their anxiety to congratulate him, they became confused and thought he was running for Senator. Among others was a message addressed to:

"Hon. Senator Andy Gump,
Care of Evening Public Ledger."

It was sent by Mario De Buechi, of Christian street. In the envelope was a card with the sincere thought, "Happy congratulations."

The candidate also received phone calls from Joe Dougherty, of Millbourne; Frank Donnelly, of Atlantic City; Lester Joffe, of Narberth, and many others.

It would be hard to describe the scene in Gump's headquarters today. Brooms, samaras, feathers, black mustaches and badges were mired in an ever-moving mass of riotous rosters.

"Give us a slant on what you got in to do," growled one politician who wanted with a big cigar.

He's on the Level

"I won't give you slant," said Andy, "but I'll give you a straight line because I'm on the level."

"Bravo," shouted the real Gump-fans.

"I'm going to help to give the people what they want," added the Congressman, as he focused his eyes on a dark bottle in the corner of his office.

Cheers broke loose as Andy's subconscious glance spoke louder than words.

"I'll see that alleged employees in Washington do something more than exhibit the soles of their feet to those who pass the Capitol. I'm not going to give people positions, but I will give them jobs. A position is a thing which some people stand in, but won't stand for no such standing if I can help it."

Cries of "That's right" bade Andy turn on more oratorical steam.

"There's been too many battered bromides and incapacitated adjectives used in politics. We want a new language. The people are getting weary from ranting rhetoric. Let's end the semicolon policy and get to a period."

The talk about the full dinner pail is all right, but often it's full of cold soup and hot air. Let's put something in it. That's what I'm going to do."

Then all hands were invited to Andy's back office, from which noises emanated, indicating that every one was full of enthusiasm.
